Nonopy denies that if you would have oysters by the plate, stewed, fried, roasted raw or on the half-shell, by the dozen, can or barrel, there is only one place in the city where you can get the freshest, juiciest and best. That place by common consent is the Thalia Oyster saloon, at the corner of Twelfth street and Washington avenue, and, while there, if you should chance to call for a glass of St. Louis lager; a glass of wine, native or toreign, or something of a stronger kind, your own good taste will testify that Jacokel keeps the best. Then go to the Thalis, call for what you want to eat or drink, and if you are not more than satis-Sed, everybody will say that you must charge your dissatisfaction to your own depraved taste.
